

What our members think of IPAA NSW

Prof. Percy Allan AM FIPAA

Chair, Council on the Cost and Quality of Government:

"Of the many professional associations I belong to, IPAA is the best value for money because it provides stimulating policy forums and refreshments as part of one's membership entitlement. Keep up the good work! "

Kate Hamilton

Training Manager, Sydney International Campus of Central Queensland University:

"I think IPAA is a valuable and nourishing resource for my professional and intellectual life and I appreciate the diversity of topics, their relevance and timeliness in the seminars. Even though there may be times I can't participate as fully as I want to because of conflicting work pressures I feel that there will always be more opportunities."

Robert Alder

CFO/Corporate Services Manager, Job Futures:

"Being fortunate enough to be the inaugural convenor of IPAA NSW Western Sydney Special Interest Group gave me an insight into how to create and sustain leading-edge discussion forums. Opportunities abound, and my current involvement with the IPAA NSW Public Sector Industry Training Network has been both educational and professionally rewarding."

Amanda Cohen

Human Resources Generalist, Sydney Harbour Foreshore Authority:

"IPAA has allowed me to make some great contacts across the public sector and beyond. As the next generation of leaders, I hope my fellow IPAA members and I can drive the changes we want to see."

Fran Morris,

Managing Director, Director Education Asia Pacific:

"I enjoy the intelligent presentations at IPAA NSW events. Speakers examine, rather than skirt, complex issues and trends, and are prepared to engage in constructive discussion. There are always challenging issues to ponder and discuss with peers."

Jeanette Morgan

Manager, Governance Directorate, NSW Department of Community Services:

"IPAA NSW events such as forums and conferences allow me to catch up with friends and also network with people from other organisations, both from the public sector and the private sector - and I gain education at the same time!"

Neil Sandall

Project Director, Mt Druitt Community Solutions and Crime Prevention Strategy:

"Membership of IPAA has been highly beneficial to my personal and professional development over many years. I find it more indispensable today than ever before. IPAA NSW is a key source of contemporary debate, an identifier of issues and a commentator on new developments, challenges and trends in public sector management, through its journals, forums, seminars, special interest groups and the like."

Benson Waghorn

formerly Project Officer, Office of Government Procurement, NSW Department of Commerce:

"IPAA is excellent for professional and personal development. It provides me with a chance to reflect on my work, how it might be improved, and how it fits within the wider role of public administration. The Institute particularly encourages younger public servants to contribute and be involved. I have enjoyed and benefited from these opportunities - thank you IPAA!"
